Due to the funds available we will only fund running costs if they are part of a project application.

We do not fund salaries we would consider supporting sessional worker costs but only as part of a specific project.

How often can I apply for a grant?

Charities receiving funding from us should allow 12 months to elapse from our last grant award before making a new application.

Unsuccessful applicants can reapply after 12 months has lapsed from receiving the notification of the unsuccessful outcome of the request.

Do I need a DWF Staff reference on my application?

We want to see how The DWF Foundation is supporting the interests of our people at DWF, as they are the ones helping us raise the funds. To help us do this we are asking that if you know a person working for DWF LLP you let us know.

It is not essential in your application that you have a staff reference you can apply without.

Who can be a reference on my application?

Your reference needs to be someone who is independent of your organisation (not a trustee or anyone involved in the running of the charity) who can talk about your work.

Why do you need to know our DWF local office location?

As our people help raise the funds we distribute its important that they are involved in the distribution of funding and local knowledge is important to our grant giving. We ask our local CSR committees to review bids we receive from their local area to help us make sure we get our funds to where it's needed and to the projects that our people want to see us supporting.

Do you have an appeals process?

We do not have an appeals process and the trustee's decision is final.

Can I get feedback if my application is refused?

Sadly due to the large number of applications we are now receiving we are unable to give feedback on your application.

We do run online session about "making an application" these are free and you can find the details and booking links here
